BERLIN REPORTS RUSSIAN COLLAPSE

Three of 'Red' Armies Beaten

Million Hopelessly Trapped, According to Germans; Hitler Sees Victory Over Soviet Before Winter

MOSCOW, Oct. 9—Russia's huge armies rose up in all the fury of a last-ditch stand today to stem the crushing German offensive on the Central Front. The Red army newspaper reported that a German attempt to reach and capture the town of Vyazma, 140 miles west of Moscow, had failed in the face of the desperate Russian resistance.

Soviet advices to Moscow likewise reported that since yesterday the Nazi legions have been trying to batter their way northward from German-occupied Orel, 200 miles south of the Russian capital.

LONDON, Oct. 9—Gravity of Russia's military situation under the terrific battering of the newest Nazi offensive was conceded by British authorities today. Newspapers in London stressed the appeal of the Red Fleet, organ of the Russian navy, to Britain to strike a blow in the west and thus relieve the German pressure on the USSR.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 9—A Hungarian military bulletin reported today that Soviet troops have "ceased activity" on the Dnieper River front after being encircled by axis forces.

BERLIN, Oct. 9—The semi-official German news agency DNB reported from Shanghai today that high Russian government officials as well as foreign diplomats are leaving Moscow. According to the report, Soviet circles in Shanghai revealed that administrative branches of the Russian government and Communist party are being evacuated from the capital, along with members of the diplomatic corps.

BERLIN, Oct. 9—At least a million Soviet troops are hopelessly trapped in the Bryansk sector of the Russian Front, the armies of Voroshilov, Budenny and Timoshenko have collapsed and Nazi Germany's gigantic military campaign against the Soviet Union may be considered won, according to official announcements in Berlin today.

COUP UNSEATS PRESIDENT OF PANAMA ZONE

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 9—In a bloodless coup d'etat carried through without a single shot being fired, the government of President Arnulfo Arias, often accused of being pro-Fascist, was overthrown today.

The revolutionists seized control of the government by the apparently simple act of capturing the Panama police headquarters without opposition and jailing three of Arias' appointees.

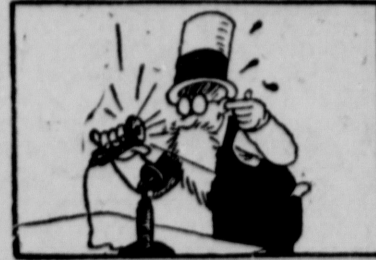

They took advantage of Arias' absence from the country to take over the government.

The new regime will set up a policy of full cooperation with the United States hemispheric defense program.

BUILDING BAN DECREE DRAWN

New And Non-Essential Construction Hit By Federal Ruling

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The government today promulgated a new policy aimed at suspending all new and non-essential public and private construction where it would deplete the supply of defense materials.

The policy was outlined by President Roosevelt's Supply Priorities and Allocations board and the Office of Production Management was directed to put it in effect at once.

A board statement explained that "no public or private construction projects which use critical materials such as steel, copper, brass, bronze, aluminum, and so forth, may be started during the emergency unless these projects are either necessary for direct National Defense or are essential to the health and safety of the people."

"This applies to public projects—federal, state and local—such as building of postoffices, court houses and similar structures; to the construction of roads and highways; to river and harbor improvements; and to flood and power projects. It applies to the construction of factories, lofts, warehouses, office buildings, apartment buildings and all other commercial construction. It applies to residential construction and to construction for public utilities."

BRITAIN CLAIMS CAPTURE OF BIG GERMAN U-BOAT

LONDON, Oct. 9—Surrender of a large German submarine after a "spirited action with His Majesty's armed trawler Lady Shirley" was announced by the British admiralty today.

The communiqué said the trawler took 44 German prisoners into Gibraltar.

While patrolling at sea, the announcement said, the Lady Shirley sighted the U-boat on the surface. The submarine made a crash dive, but was forced back to the surface by depth charges.

After that the trawler shelled the submarine, forcing its crew to come out on deck, holding up their arms in the sign of surrender.

The U-boat sank but the trawler rescued 44 survivors. According to the communiqué, the only British loss was one man, who was killed.

The Lady Shirley carried a crew of 30 officers and men.

King George VI awarded the trawler's commander, Lieut-Com-mander A. H. Callaway, a D. S. O.

LEIGH Culley, a newspaper reporter who "broke" the story, peers into a wooden coffin which stood in the barn of a farm home near Jacksonville, Fla., for 18 years, containing the body of a Negro servant who died in 1923. The Negro's features are still clear, though mummified. The bodies of Elbert Anhorn, who died in 1921, and Miss Fannie Anhorn, his daughter, who died in 1925, were kept in sealed steel caskets in the home, occupied by Miss Gertrude Anhorn, now 74, and Miss Minnie Anhorn, now 68, daughters of Anhorn, who refused to bury anyone they loved. The story of the eccentric sisters' preservation of the bodies was revealed to Culley by a younger Anhorn sister, Mrs. William P. Bacheller, of Newport, R. I. Gertrude Anhorn is now in a rest home in St. Augustine, Fla., but Minnie refuses to leave the shanty which contained also the body of an unburied pet rabbit.

He is in New York at the present time, working under instructions of Kenneth C. Ray, director of education.

It is understood that the resignation becomes effective October 15.

Power said the resignation is part of a plan to shakeup the film censorship division of the Department of Education. A Madison County woman, it is rumored in Columbus, is in line for appointment as film censor at a salary of $2,100 a year, less than half of the amount being paid to Reichelderfer, whose home in Circleville is at 646 North Court Street.

NEED FOR STEEL HOLDS UP WORK ON THREE BOATS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The Navy Department reported today that construction of two destroyers and a battleship at the Philadelphia Navy Yard had been delayed because of a shortage of steel in the shipbuilding industry "at this time."

However, it was emphasized that construction of ships involves "many flexible factors," and delay of about two months on the ships might be overcome "almost any time."

The department added that completion of the ships on schedule might not necessarily be delayed by the reported shortage of steel for shipbuilding, because sufficient quantities might be available on time.

It was reported that construction on other ships in yards outside of Philadelphia, such as New York, also was being delayed.

Thousands Move Into Show Area To Enjoy Event

Estimates Run From 14,000 to 20,000 for Wednesday Throng; Pet Parade, Festival of Bands Feature Thursday Program

WEATHER CONTINUES TO COOPERATE

Outstanding Musical Organizations to Play, March at High School Field

Rain started to fall Thursday afternoon just as Show officials were getting the Pet and Float Parade lined up for its start.

With the crowd attending the opening night of the thirty-eighth annual Pumpkin Show establishing new records, the annual celebration was well into its second day Thursday with another precedent-shattering throng moving into the Show district to look over the exhibits, enjoy the acts and rides and to watch the Pet and Float Parade scheduled for Thursday afternoon and the Festival of Bands to be conducted during the evening.

Veteran members of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society, sponsor of the Pumpkin Show, declare that Wednesday night's crowd was the largest which has ever witnessed an opening night Show since the big festival was started many years ago. Estimates on the number of persons attending the event ran from 14,000 to 18,000, with some persons willing to state that the gathering might have reached 20,000. Regardless of the guesses concerning the number at the show, it was without doubt the largest crowd any first night has seen.

F. E. Gooding, who operates the rides for the Pumpkin Show, said Thursday that his firm's business Wednesday night was the best it had ever been on an opener.

Mayor W. B. Cady, president of the Agricultural Society, who rode in a station wagon at the head of the Miss Pumpkin Show parade, said that crowds along the line of march were more dense than any that he could recall.

The weather was perfect Wednesday, and, despite some clouds, Thursday remained cool, the type of weather that pleases the crowds that gather in the city to enjoy the festivities.

Many Features Listed

Thursday's highlights were the horse pulling contest, being conducted on the West Mound Street ball park, judging of sheep and dairy cattle at the 4-H Livestock Show at Main and Pickaway, the Pet and Float Parade, booked at 2 p. m.; the girls' dress revue to be at 7:30 p. m. at Main and Pickaway Streets.

Despite the large crowd at Wednesday night's show, police made no arrests during the evening and reported no traffic accidents within the city limits.

One of the Pumpkin Show's biggest events is scheduled to start at 7:45, when some of Ohio's finest school bands appear at the High School Athletic Field to play in concert and to march across the gridiron. Active Warfare Continues In Montenegro Over Axis Rule

By Merrill Mueller

LONDON, Oct. 9—With active warfare again raging in Montenegro as the result of axis attempts to smash all guerrilla centers, more than 180,000 Serbs and Jews have been killed, wounded, tortured or sent to concentration camps in the last few weeks, Milan Grol, Yugoslav minister of communications in exile, told this correspondent today.

Leaders of the Ustachi, the extreme nationalist Serbian organization modeled on Fascist lines, have been given a virtual free hand to engage in vast program designed to quell resistance to the "new order," Grol said.

(According to Reuters news agency, the Swiss radio broadcast a Belgrade dispatch stating Ustachi troops wiped out organized "Communist troops" in a pitched battle. This account "said the Communists were equipped with motor vehicles and radio transmitters.")

Citing what he said was an official report on conditions received through secret channels, Grol described various instances of alleged repression which he said had been ordered by Ante Pavelitch, leader of the Ustachi who has the full support of Premier Mussolini. CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Davey Day, Chicago's perennial lightweight championship contender, will find himself ranked as the underdog tomorrow night when he enters the ring against Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia Negro slugger, at the Chicago stadium.

the largest military power of all times.

"Within hardly three months, you succeeded in smashing one tank brigade after another, annihilated countless divisions, took uncounted prisoners and occupied areas with which the foe was supplying its war industry with raw materials."

"Within a few weeks, the most decisive industrial centers of the Soviet Union will be in your hands."

Hitler death at length with the gigantic quantity of war materials captured and told of the vast amount of work done in repairing and rebuilding bridges in the areas now under Nazi rule.

"The world has never witnessed anything like it," he said.

Russia Planned Smash

Summarizing the entire campaign and the events preceding it, Hitler charged that Russia had been determined to "smash Europe."

"Woe to us and all of Europe if the barbarian foe had been allowed to launch his 10,000 tanks," he said.

"The whole of Europe would have been lost, for this foe of ours consists not of soldiers, but largely of beasts."

Dietrich handed copies of the Fuehrer's manifesto to foreign correspondents at the Wilhelmstrasse, and took occasion to ridicule claims of big Russian counter-offensives and heavy German losses.

Asserting that Russia's military weakness lay in her lack of leadership, Dietrich said:

"Timoshenko's so-called offensive was nothing but a swindle and a bluff."

"Never did anything deserving of the name take place in the last fortnight. Before then there were only weak attacks, which were quickly beaten."

Leningrad, Dietrich said, is encircled in an "airtight" ring and not a single soldier will break out. The whole Red front, Dietrich said, is collapsing, and nothing but regional garrisons are left to carry on sporadic winter fighting after Timoshenko's armies are shattered.

Everywhere, an official announcement said, the Russian armies are now "beating a hasty retreat."

NEW COMEDY PROGRAM

Frank Fay's opening as star of a new program scheduled to join the Thursday evening parade has been set for October 23, at 10:30 p. m. Supporting the comedian will be Bob Hannon, popular tenor; the Continentals, a quartet of three men and a girl; and Harry Salter's orchestra. Guest talent will also be featured each week.

Veteran of musical comedy, vaudeville, and the screen before Rudy Vallee introduced him to the radio audience, Fay had his own program one before and has been heard frequently in the guest spots of leading programs.

Hannon has sung with such well-known radio orchestras as Harry Sosnik's, Henry Busse's, Wayne King's, Buddy Rogers', and Paul Whiteman's, as well as in the movies.

NEWSPAPER HONORED

An address by Joseph Martin, minority leader of the House of Representatives, at a ceremony honoring the Western Star, oldest newspaper in Ohio, will be broadcast on Saturday, at 5 o'clock, from Lebanon.

Representative Martin will speak at the dedication of a bronze tablet being presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution to the management of the paper. Officials said that Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio also may be present for the ceremonies.

The program will be conducted by Peter Grant, news announcer. In addition to Representative Martin, he will bring Gardner Townsley, editor of the Western Star, to the microphone for brief comment.

"AUTUMNTIME CONCERT"

Clara Solo, youthful coloratura soprano from Dallas, Texas, will be the "Chance of a Lifetime" soloist on the "Autumntime Concert" to be heard at 4:30 p. m. on Sunday. Miss Solo has chosen the celebrated "Caro Nome" from Verdi's "Rigoletto" as her selection.

and Circleville High Schools bands for participation. There is no competition among bands, each receiving a premium for coming to the Show.

A contest will be conducted, however, for drum majors at the athletic field.

To Parade At 9

If the band show proceeds according to schedule all the musical organizations will march to the business district at 9 o'clock to parade the Pumpkin Show area. This promises to be one of the Show's outstanding features.

Friday will bring additional highlights, with swine judging to start at 9 a. m.; the Baby Parade and Show at 2; the Class B band competition at 7 p. m. at the High School Athletic Field, and a demonstration at the athletic field by the Columbus Elks band and its crack men's and women's patrols. The patrols will drill at the field in another highlight.

The 4-H Club livestock sale is scheduled at Main and Pickaway Streets at 7:30 Friday evening.

Judging was being conducted Thursday in some of the various departments, much of the Junior Fair competition being examined for awards. Additional judging will be in full swing Friday morning in all other departments, and Friday afternoon will see nearly all of the ribbons placed on the best entries in the various shows.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Joseph Luger.

Miss Sole is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where she studied under Dr. Hubert Kockritz. She has studied violin and piano in addition to her vocal training.

RADIO BRIEFS

Evidently Frank Black was right in offering so many Gilbert and Sullivan songs on recent programs. There has been such demand for their music that the Shuberts have just formed a new Gilbert and Sullivan company to open in Boston. One of the leads will be Morton Lowe, radio singer.

Although he'll have a staff of scriptwriters for his new series which opens Oct. 23, Frank Fay will write much of the material himself. He's an ace writer and has contributed dialogue to movies and stage shows for years.

An ace supporting cast is being lined up for Una Merkel, screen star, who'll play the title role in "Nancy Bacon Reporting" starting on "Johnny Presents" Tuesday, Nov. 4. Miss Merkel will portray a dizzy gal reporter who always manages to get her story.

The Book of the Month Club has just arranged with Kate Smith to have the songstress-commentator announce the Club's new book-of-the-month selection on her daytime program several days before that organization makes it public.

killed and many more arrested at Lubiana," he said.

"At Dvon, no less than 2,500 were killed. More than a thousand are dead at Donjilpac and 3,000 at Prijedor. Another 1,000 were killed at Mostar and 200 at Nevesinje."

With Young King

Grol, who escaped from Yugoslavia when German troops invaded his country, came to London with boy King Peter in July.

"My people are still fighting," he said, "but they are suffering terrible hardships."

"The Germans actually ordered a whole mechanized division, plus squadrons of Stukas, into the southwestern mountain area to cooperate with the Italians who are bombarding every village, terrorizing the population. Every village suspected of harboring or supplying the guerilla forces is attacked."

"German artillery fire razed one area outside Oujtze where 12,000 persons were living. Many were killed. There are daily Italian air bombardments of mountain villages."

"Some progressive members of the Yugoslavian House of Deputies are among the latest victims."

"But even more important is the attempt of Pavelitch to destroy Serbian Orthodox churches and monasteries. . . . nevertheless, our people continue their passive resistance, even though the country has been stripped bare by axis occupational troops."

GERMANS DENY LONDON CHARGE IN WAR 'TRADE'

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Germany flatly placed the blame on England today for collapse of the proposed exchange of seriously wounded German and British prisoners of war.

(Editor's Note: When the plan fell through, the British government pronounced the scheme's failure the result of a "flagrant breach of faith on behalf of the German government.")

A semi-official German statement said Germany first suggested the exchange last August through the mediation of Switzerland.

"In accordance with German victories over England," the statement said, "1,143 selectible Britons were in German hands, while there were only about 50 Germans in England."

According to the announcement Germany proposed that the difference in numbers be made up by

German civilian internees in England, but the British government rejected this proposal, suggesting however that it was willing to repatriate a number of German women.

The German statement blamed England for the initial temporary delay, but said the Reich agreed to proposals of the United States embassy in London on October 4 that two British hospital ships proceed to France with 100 German wounded prisoners and repatriate a corresponding number of Britons. It was suggested the exchange be carried out October 7.

"Despite Germany's approval," the Nazi statement said, "the British hospital ship failed to arrive, while the British radio announced nullification of the exchange."

Stating England had blamed Germany for failure of the plan, the statement added:

"First, Germany approved a partial exchange, which England frustrated."

Second, England always could have had all the seriously wounded Britons repatriated by balancing out the disparity with German civilian internees."

The statement concluded by charging Britain published false statements regarding the exchange for purposes of self-vindication.

NEW COMEDY PROGRAM

Frank Fay's opening as star of a new program scheduled to join the Thursday evening parade has been set for October 23, at 10:30 p. m. Supporting the comedian will be Bob Hannon, popular tenor; the Continentals, a quartet of three men and a girl; and Harry Salter's orchestra. Guest talent will also be featured each week.

Veteran of musical comedy, vaudeville, and the screen before Rudy Vallee introduced him to the radio audience, Fay had his own program one before and has been heard frequently in the guest spots of leading programs.

Hannon has sung with such well-known radio orchestras as Harry Sosnik's, Henry Busse's, Wayne King's, Buddy Rogers', and Paul Whiteman's, as well as in the movies.

NEWSPAPER HONORED

An address by Joseph Martin, minority leader of the House of Representatives, at a ceremony honoring the Western Star, oldest newspaper in Ohio, will be broadcast on Saturday, at 5 o'clock, from Lebanon.

Representative Martin will speak at the dedication of a bronze tablet being presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution to the management of the paper. Officials said that Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio also may be present for the ceremonies.

The program will be conducted by Peter Grant, news announcer. In addition to Representative Martin, he will bring Gardner Townsley, editor of the Western Star, to the microphone for brief comment.

"AUTUMNTIME CONCERT"

Clara Sole, youthful coloratura soprano from Dallas, Texas, will be the "Chance of a Lifetime" soloist on the "Autumntime Concert" to be heard at 4:30 p. m. on Sunday. Miss Sole has chosen the celebrated "Caro Nome" from Verdi's "Rigoletto" as her selection.

and Circleville High Schools bands for participation. There is no competition among bands, each receiving a premium for coming to the Show.

A contest will be conducted, however, for drum majors at the athletic field.

To Parade At 9

If the band show proceeds according to schedule all the musical organizations will march to the business district at 9 o'clock to parade the Pumpkin Show area. This promises to be one of the Show's outstanding features.

Friday will bring additional highlights, with swine judging to start at 9 a. m.; the Baby Parade and Show at 2; the Class B band competition at 7 p. m. at the High School Athletic Field, and a demonstration at the athletic field by the Columbus Elks band and its crack men's and women's patrols. The patrols will drill at the field in another highlight.

The 4-H Club livestock sale is scheduled at Main and Pickaway Streets at 7:30 Friday evening.

Judging was being conducted Thursday in some of the various departments, much of the Junior Fair competition being examined for awards. Additional judging will be in full swing Friday morning in all other departments, and Friday afternoon will see nearly all of the ribbons placed on the best entries in the various shows.

The orchestra will be under the direction of Joseph Lugar.

Miss Sole is a graduate of the Opera Department of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where she studied under Dr. Hubert Koekritz. She has studied violin and piano in addition to her vocal training.

RADIO BRIEFS

Evidently Frank Black was right in offering so many Gilbert and Sullivan songs on recent programs. There has been such demand for their music that the Shuberts have just formed a new Gilbert and Sullivan company to open in Boston. One of the leads will be Morton Lowe, radio singer.

Although he'll have a staff of scriptwriters for his new series which opens Oct. 23, Frank Fay will write much of the material himself. He's an ace writer and has contributed dialogue to movies and stage shows for years.

An ace supporting cast is being lined up for Una Merkel, screen star, who'll play the title role in "Nancy Bacon Reporting" starting on "Johnny Presents" Tuesday, Nov. 4. Miss Merkel will portray a dizzy gal reporter who always manages to get her story.

The Book of the Month Club has just arranged with Kate Smith to have the songstress-commentator announce the Club's new book-of-the-month selection on her daytime program several days before that organization makes it public.

killed and many more arrested at Ljubljana," he said.

"At Dvor, no less than 2,500 were killed. More than a thousand are dead at Donjilpac and 3,000 at Prijedor. Another 1,000 were killed at Mostar and 200 at Nevesinje."

With Young King

Grol, who escaped from Yugoslavia when German troops invaded his country, came to London with boy King Peter in July.

"My people are still fighting," he said, "but they are suffering terrible hardships."

"The Germans actually ordered a whole mechanized division, plus squadrons of Stukas, into the southwestern mountain area to cooperate with the Italians who are bombarding every village, terrorizing the population. Every village suspected of harboring or supplying the guerilla forces is attacked."

"German artillery fire razed one area outside Oujtse where 12,000 persons were living. Many were killed. There are daily Italian air bombardments of mountain villages."

"Some progressive members of the Yugoslavian House of Deputies are among the latest victims."

"But even more important is the attempt of Pavelitch to destroy Serbian Orthodox churches and monasteries. . . . nevertheless, our people continue their passive resistance, even though the country has been stripped bare by axis occupational troops."

GERMANS DENY LONDON CHARGE IN WAR 'TRADE'

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Germany flatly placed the blame on England today for collapse of the proposed exchange of seriously wounded German and British prisoners of war.

(Editor's Note: When the plan fell through, the British government pronounced the scheme's failure the result of a "flagrant breach of faith on behalf of the German government.")

A semi-official German statement said Germany first suggested the exchange last August through the mediation of Switzerland.

"In accordance with German victories over England," the statement said, "1,143 selectable Britons were in German hands, while there were only about 50 Germans in England."

According to the announcement Germany proposed that the difference in numbers be made up by

German civilian internees in England, but the British government rejected this proposal, suggesting however that it was willing to repatriate a number of German women.

The German statement blamed England for the initial temporary delay, but said the Reich agreed to proposals of the United States embassy in London on October 4 that two British hospital ships proceed to France with 100 German wounded prisoners and repatriate a corresponding number of Britons. It was suggested the exchange be carried out October 7.

"Despite Germany's approval," the Nazi statement said, "the British hospital ship failed to arrive, while the British radio announced nullification of the exchange."

Stating England had blamed Germany for failure of the plan, the statement added: "First, Germany approved a partial exchange, which England frustrated."

Second, England always could have had all the seriously wounded Britons repatriated by balancing out the disparity with German civilian internees."

The statement concluded by charging Britain published false

statements regarding the exchange for purposes of self-vindication.

CHECKS WORTH $452,000 COME TO COUNTY MEN

AAA Benefits Reported At Nearly Half Million By Officials

PAYMENTS ARE OUTLINED

Six New England States Without Aid; Hawaii Given Share

Pickaway County farmers will receive about $452,000, in the form of AAA checks this fall, John G. Boggs, chairman of the county AAA committee, announced Thursday.

The checks will include $150,921 in parity payments on corn and wheat for farmers who stayed within their wheat and corn allotments. Parity payments on corn will be 5½ cents a bushel and on wheat 8½ cents a bushel.

Other payments, which will be made in the form of conservation checks to those farmers who have carried out soil building programs on their farms will amount to over $300,000.

Parity payments and conservation payments will be made on the same checks this year and therefore probably will be issued later than last year. The local AAA office said it hoped to have all the checks issued by December.

Parity payments to farmers for the 1940 program amounted to $205,834,629, with Ohio farmers receiving approximately $4,824,072 of that amount, the Agriculture Department announced.

The announcement said that administrative costs boosted the aggregate payments to $210,003,151. Corn, cotton, wheat and rice producers in 42 states and Hawaii shared in the payments. No payments were reported in six New England States.

ASHVILLE

Justice of the Peace Elmer Malone had in his court Tuesday evening four young ladies of the O.S.U., they said, and brought into court by a highway patrolman for doing 80 per. over on 23. The driver was assessed forty and costs which was paid and the quartet of apparently happy ones, left hoping not to make a return trip soon again.

Met little Lawrence Metts, a second grader of the local school, who had his right arm all splinted and bundled up because Doc Schiff thought it would better be fixed that way to hold it together because it had come apart in a fall he had had off a slide board out at school the other day. Thought it was kind of Miss LeMay, of Grade One teacher to get him to the doctor in a hurry after he took his tumble. It hurt awful bad then, he said, enough to make most anybody cry some.

The temperature just right for comfort, sunshine without the amide of a cloud in sight, coaxed us out yesterday to a much longer inspection trip than we ordinarily make. Over to the North-west section to the Hoover meat store where pork loins were being trimmed and sliced out ready for sale by the boss meat cutter, Leroy Hoover. From there, on down the late Thad Cromley Jefferson Avenue to Harry Brown's place where some speckled corn in the window, got our attention, but no one knew the name, if any, attached to it. The door yards in West Main Street are well kept and never presented a better appearance than now. Our next stop was with our printer friend and Ex-Mayor, E. E. Fraunfelder, weigh master and time keeper at the Crites cannery. In a short session there in a comfortable chair, most every thing that needed it got the once over.

Mrs. Grace Sparrow, an aunt of Mrs. L. C. Schiff, and here at the Schiff home for the past several days, has returned to her home at Miami, Florida. Hal and Mrs. Reid of Cromley Street are guests at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Merrill and Mrs. Valentine, Columbus. The John Reids at Duval had for recent guests, Miss Dorene Evans, Akron, and Mrs. Howard Tinker, of Frankfort. It's "all out" for the Ashville schools Friday and

Pie Eaters Active; Square Dancing Draws; Store Decorating Needed

Varied competition that draws a lot of laughs and provides cash awards, theatre tickets and ride passes for contestants is proving successful at Main and Scioto Street where the American Legion Club is putting on a show. The activity is directed by Eugene Boring and Robert Verbeck of the WPA Recreation center, each day at 4 and 9 p. m.

Pumpkin pie eating is being staged each day, with the winner of each pie eating contest to receive $1 prize and a chance in the finals Saturday night. Winner Wednesday evening was Marvin Robinson, with Hubert Haddock in second place and Herbert Poling in third.

A nail driving contest was won by Miss Evelyn Adams, with Bob Woods second and Charles Brown third, and a Coca Cola drinking contest found Tom Martin and Fred Heeter in a deadlock for honors.

ESHELMAN MILL FIRE IS HALTED IN SHORT TIME

Fire, which might have been serious had it not been discovered almost immediately, broke out in a dust collector of the J. W. Eshelman and Son plant on East Mill Street Wednesday night about 8 o'clock.

The flames were discovered near the outlet of the dust collector located on the second floor of the plant and were extinguished before they could spread through the building. Fire Chief Talmer Wise said damage would run under $100. Cause of the fire was not known.

Two years ago a fire which broke out in the plant's dust collector, spread through the building and resulted in thousands of dollars in damage.

The fire alarm system rang at the city building, but failed to operate at the fire department, and it was not until firemen heard the bell in City Hall that they knew of the fire. Wise, Thursday, was testing the signal system.

A fire at the residence of Councilman W. M. Reid developed Wednesday evening about six o'clock when an old sack was discovered burning under his house. Mr. Reid had noticed smoke coming from the basement of his house, but said he was unable to determine where it was coming from. Firemen found the sack under the foundation of the house.

We Are Surprised and Pleased

When we look over the Pumpkin Show Program and see the many interesting things listed and know they are all here. We are surprised and pleased. DON'T MISS THIS SHOW. Come in and visit with us.

Griffith & Martin

"Where Floorcovering Is a Specialty"

chief boosters. He is state manager for the American Oil and Paint Co., and for 10 years has been attending Pumpkin Shows, and getting a real kick out of them.

"I've arranged my work every year," Mr. Gray said when he came to Circleville Wednesday, "so that I can attend the Pumpkin Show. It is without a doubt the greatest exposition in the country today."

He says he'd rather miss his home county fair at Canton than the Pumpkin Show.

Although there are many beautifully-decorated store windows in Circleville's business district, many persons observed Wednesday evening that some of the merchants' had turned off all their lights when they closed their doors for the day. This brings to mind again the need for a window-decorating contest to make merchants more conscious of the need for decorations and bright lights during the big festival.

The square dance got a big play in the opening night, and weather permitting, will be one of the most popular diversions of the Pumpkin Show. Johnny Rhodes was in rare form as a caller, and Brownie's Band of Sedalia did real well in providing the swing for the dancers.

The mechanical elephant brought to the Show by the J. W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co.

continues to attract attention. Many youngsters were crowded on top the elephant Wednesday evening getting an 'elephant's-eye' view of the festivities.

One of the really big attractions of the Pumpkin Show is 'Dolly,' the only cow in the world with two heads or three horns. She was born April 4, 1936, on a dairy farm near San Diego, Cal. Her heads are male on the left and female on the right, three horns forming a triangle. The cow has been on exhibit since she was nine days old and has always been healthy. Her owner has exhibited her in 36 states and in Canada. She is the property of Elvin Thomson, National City, Cal. The cow is being shown opposite the Farm Bureau, East Main Street.

Additional donors to the Pumpkin Show were listed Thursday by Secretary Mack D. Parrett. This list is in addition to one published earlier in the week. Named are Drake Cream Station, $2; Alfred Lee, $1; C. O. Leist, $2; Ervin Leist, $1; Dr. L. F. Neuen-schwander, $1; Mrs. Bern Shidaker, $1; E. S. Stephens, $1; Weaver and Wells, $10; Frank Fischer, $1; J. Wray Henry, $1; Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, $1; Pick-away Farm Bureau, $25; Pick-away Dairy, $10; George Haley, $25; Miller-Jones Co., $3; Ohio Water Service Co., $10; Stone's Grill, $100; Sturm and Dillard, $10; Fairmont Cream Station, $3; M. ## Jr. Fair Poster Award Goes to Rodocker Lad

George Franklin Rodocker, Saltcreek Township, was proclaimed winner of the high school poster contest Wednesday afternoon. His poster, advertising the Junior Fair, carries an oil painting of an autumn scene with Junior Fair lettering across the top and bottom.

Other winners in the high school contest were: 2. Gladys Marie Bowshier, Scioto Township; 3. Betty Jeanne Kreiger, Scioto Township;

4. Harry L. Bowshier, Scioto Township, and 5. Edward Wolfe, Saltcreek Township.

Elementary winner was Elaine Stoker, New Holland, whose poster consisted of a boy with a flag, and a brick wall running diagonally across the middle with Junior Fair lettering.

Other elementary winners were: 2. Merle Leslie Hawk, Saltcreek Township; 3. Beulah Fausnaugh, Scioto Township; 4. Lorna Holbrook, Saltcreek Township, and 5. Lois Defenbaugh, Saltcreek Township.

The posters are now on display in the east end of the armory.

LARGE COWS—MORE MILK

ITHACA, N. Y.—Larger cows give more milk, a study at Cornell University indicated. Each 100 pounds increase in size of dairy cows mean an annual increase of about 600 to 800 pounds of milk to the cow, it was revealed. The study comprised more than 500 dairy herds in five New York counties.

In some cities teachers now instruct in the home if a pupil is too ill to attend school. There goes the last redeeming feature of a head cold.

CHECKS WORTH $452,000 COME TO COUNTY MEN

AAA Benefits Reported At Nearly Half Million By Officials

PAYMENTS ARE OUTLINED

Six New England States Without Aid; Hawaii Given Share

Pickaway County farmers will receive about $452,000, in the form of AAA checks this fall, John G. Boggs, chairman of the county AAA committee, announced Thursday.

The checks will include $150,000 in parity payments on corn and wheat for farmers who stayed within their wheat and corn allotments. Parity payments on corn will be 5½ cents a bushel and on wheat 8½ cents a bushel.

Other payments, which will be made in the form of conservation checks to those farmers who have carried out soil building programs on their farms will amount to over $300,000.

Parity payments and conservation payments will be made on the same checks this year and therefore probably will be issued later than last year. The local AAA office said it hoped to have all the checks issued by December.

Parity payments to farmers for the 1940 program amounted to $205,834,629, with Ohio farmers receiving approximately $4,824,072 of that amount, the Agriculture Department announced.

The announcement said that administrative costs boosted the aggregate payments to $210,003,151. Corn, cotton, wheat and rice producers in 42 states and Hawaii shared in the payments. No payments were reported in six New England States.

ASHVILLE

Justice of the Peace Elmer Malone had in his court Tuesday evening four young ladies of the O.S.U., they said, and brought into court by a highway patrolman for doing 80 per. over on 23. The driver was assessed forty and costs which was paid and the quartet of apparently happy ones, left hoping not to make a return trip soon again.

Met little Lawrence Metts, a second grader of the local school, who had his right arm splinted and bundled up because Doc Schiff thought it would better be fixed that way to hold it together because it had come apart in a fall he had had off a slide board out at school the other day. Thought it was kind of Miss LeMay, of Grade One teacher to get him to the doctor in a hurry after he took his tumble. It hurt awful had then, he said, enough to make most anybody cry some.

The temperature just right for comfort, sunshine without the amide of a cloud in sight, coaxed us out yesterday to a much longer inspection trip than we ordinarily make. Over to the Northwest section to the Hoover meat store where pork loins were being trimmed and sliced out ready for sale by the boss meat cutter, Leroy Hoover. From there, on down the late Thad Cromley Jefferson Avenue to Harry Brown's place where some speckled corn in the window, got our attention, but no one knew the name, if any, attached to it. The door yards in West Main Street are well kept and never presented a better appearance than now. Our next stop was with our printer friend and Ex-Mayor, E. E. Fraunfelder, weigh master and time keeper at the Crites cannery. In a short session there in a comfortable chair, most every thing that needed it got the once over.

ESHELMAN MILL FIRE IS HALTED IN SHORT TIME

Fire, which might have been serious had it not been discovered almost immediately, broke out in a dust collector of the J. W. Eshelman and Son plant on East Mill Street Wednesday night about 8 o'clock.

The flames were discovered near the outlet of the dust collector located on the second floor of the plant and were extinguished before they could spread through the building. Fire Chief Talmer Wise said damage would run under $100. Cause of the fire was not known.

Two years ago a fire which broke out in the plant's dust collector, spread through the building and resulted in thousands of dollars in damage.

The fire alarm system rang at the city building, but failed to operate at the fire department, and it was not until firemen heard the bell in City Hall that they knew of the fire. Wise, Thursday, was testing the signal system.

A fire at the residence of Councilman W. M. Reid developed Wednesday evening about six o'clock when an old sack was discovered burning under his house. Mr. Reid had noticed smoke coming from the basement of his house, but said he was unable to determine where it was coming from. Firemen found the sack under the foundation of the house.

We Are Surprised and Pleased

When we look over the Pumpkin Show Program and see the many interesting things listed and know they are all here. We are surprised and pleased. DON'T MISS THIS SHOW. Come in and visit with us.

Griffith & Martin

chief boosters. He is state manager for the American Oil and Paint Co., and for 10 years has been attending Pumpkin Shows, and getting a real kick out of them.

"I've arranged my work every year," Mr. Gray said when he came to Circleville Wednesday, "so that I can attend the Pumpkin Show. It is without a doubt the greatest exposition in the country today."

He says he'd rather miss his home county fair at Canton than the Pumpkin Show.

Although there are many beautifully-decorated store windows in Circleville's business district, many persons observed Wednesday evening that some of the merchants' had turned off all their lights when they closed their doors for the day. This brings to mind again the need for a window-decorating contest to make merchants more conscious of the need for decorations and bright lights during the big festival.

The square dance got a big play in the opening night, and weather permitting, will be one of the most popular diversions of the Pumpkin Show. Johnny Rhodes was in rare form as a caller, and Brownie's Band of Sedalia did real well in providing the swing for the dancers.

The mechanical elephant brought to the Show by the J. W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co.

continues to attract attention. Many youngsters were crowded on top the elephant Wednesday evening getting an "elephant's-eye" view of the festivities.

One of the really big attractions of the Pumpkin Show is "Dolly," the only cow in the world with two heads or three horns. She was born April 4, 1936, on a dairy farm near San Diego, Cal. Her heads are male on the left and female on the right, three horns forming a triangle. The cow has been on exhibit since she was nine days old and has always been healthy. Her owner has exhibited her in 36 states and in Canada. She is the property of Elvin Thomson, National City, Cal. The cow is being shown opposite the Farm Bureau, East Main Street.

Additional donors to the Pumpkin Show were listed Thursday by Secretary Mack D. Parrett. This list is in addition to one published earlier in the week. Named are Drake Cream Station, $2; Alfred Lee, $1; C. O. Leist, $2; Ervin Leist, $1; Dr. L. F. Neuen-schwander, $1; Mrs. Bern Shidaker, $1; E. S. ## Jr. Fair Poster Award Goes to Rodocker Lad

George Franklin Rodocker, Saltcreek Township, was proclaimed winner of the high school poster contest Wednesday afternoon. His poster, advertising the Junior Fair, carries an oil painting of an autumn scene with Junior Fair lettering across the top and bottom.

Other winners in the high school contest were: 2. Gladys Marie Bowshier, Scioto Township; 3. Betty Jeanne Kreiger, Scioto Township; 4. Harry L. Bowshier, Scioto Township, and 5. Edward Wolfe, Saltcreek Township.

Elementary winner was Elaine Stoker, New Holland, whose poster consisted of a boy with a flag, and a brick wall running diagonally across the middle with Junior Fair lettering.

Other elementary winners were: 2. Merle Leslie Hawk, Saltcreek Township; 3. Beulah Faunsbaugh, Scioto Township; 4. Lorna Holbrook, Saltcreek Township, and 5. Lois Defenbaugh, Saltcreek Township.

The posters are now on display in the east end of the armory.

LARGE COWS—MORE MILK

ITHACA, N. Y.—Larger cows give more milk, a study at Cornell University indicated. Each 100 pounds increase in size of dairy cows mean an annual increase of about 600 to 800 pounds of milk to the cow, it was revealed. The study comprised more than 500 dairy herds in five New York counties.

DID WE DO IT?

ONE of the latest outgivings of Herr Goebbels, Nazi propaganda chief, is a tirade of hate against America and Britain for "forcing Germany to take up arms against Russia."

We Americans must dumbly admit that "we don't get it." We have been thinking, in our simple-minded way, that attacking Russia with everything he had was Hitler's own idea. We were especially convinced that he himself planned the job, because he had just made a treaty of everlasting friendship with Russia. Such Nazi pledges are usually fatal to the other party.

Just the same, we may feel complimented. If we really did, by wishful but unconscious thought waves, move Hitler to turn eastward against Russia, it was a good psychic job. For Hitler's eastern army now seems to be wearing itself out as Napoleon's did, and both the Reds and the Democracies may profit by it.

TRUCKING UP PIKE'S PEAK

A TRACTOR truck pulling a fully loaded, van-type trailer has recently climbed Pike's Peak. It made every hair-pin turn, rolled up every grade and managed every switch-back without difficulty. The run from Cascades at the entrance of Pike's Peak Park to Summit House, 20.5 miles, was made in two hours and 10 minutes.

The trailer is a show-room which demonstrates refrigeration equipment at fairs and farmers' meetings. It bore across its front the historic sign, "Pike's Peak or Bust". But the covered wagons which used to bear that motto meant only to get as far west as Pike's peak, and had no thought of climbing the mountain.

What with stores and theatres a-wheel, libraries, churches and homes in trailers, sometimes it strikes one as surprising to see people digging down into the earth to build foundations for stable homes in settled locations. Stability and free movement both, however, seem needed in this modern world.

NO MORE FIRE BELLS

IT would grieve the spirit of Edgar Allan Poe, who rang all possible changes on bells, to learn of the decision of the OPM at Washington to take the bells off the fire engines. This is done, like so many other things, to save material for national defense.

We must be defended against fire, to be sure, but the experts say the ordinary siren is adequate for the job. "Fire engines will be able to get to fires just as fast," we are told, "and will be able to fight the fires just as efficiently after they get there. The chief difference is that they

WASHINGTON—An armored tank carried under an airplane as an eagle carries its prey left the realm of fancy and became stark reality when the Germans produced this fearful novelty in the invasion of Crete. Now it is about to become a reality in the United States.

In Brooklyn, New York, a mechanism is being built for the "hook-on" and "release" whereby a tank is attached under the fuselage of the plane, and released as the plane lands.

The tank's crew of three rides in the tank as it is borne aloft, and when the plane lands, the tank driver operates the release mechanism. Free of the plane, the tank (light type of 10½ tons) operates independently, with a cruising radius of 300 miles.

This mechanism is being developed by the armored Tank Corporation of New York. It is designed to be attached to a certain type of large transport plane already in production.

NYA FIGHT

Real inside behind that General Accounting Office blast against the National Youth Administration was an internal row between the investigating and accounting division of the GAO.

The gum-shoers are under fire as inefficient and high-handed, so to make a splash and divert criticism from themselves they heaved a load of brickbats at NYA, charging it with balking Army recruiting. The real facts are that NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams was bitterly assailed by the leftist National Youth Congress because he cooperated with the Army and Navy to encourage NYA students to enlist in the armed forces.

Another inside detail of the hostile report was that it was issued without having been read by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, who is an old friend of Williams and a strong NYA supporter when he was a congressman from North Carolina.

NOTE:—Insiders predict an early consolidation of NYA and CCC under a single head. Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, titular boss of the two agencies, favors this move.

CHINA WANTS BOMBERS

Not many people know it, but the Chinese Government is having such a tough time getting war materials from the U.S.A. that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has retained the famous ex-brain truster Tom Corcoran to do a little lobbying with the White House.

What Chiang Kai-shek especially wants is long range bombers. His idea is that China cannot remain on the defensive indefinitely, and he proposes sending flying fortresses over Tokyo and Osaka, whose paper and bamboo houses would go up in smoke if subjected to bombing raids.

Chiang Kai-shek claims that this type of offensive would make the Japanese think twice regarding their revived plans to drive into Thailand toward Singapore.

However, there is only one place where China can get the bombers, and so far not even Tom Corcoran, who once sat at the

When a Baby Begins to See Things Clearly

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● The newborn baby has an eye that is completely differentiated into its various tissues and structures at birth, but it doesn't know how to use them. The size of the eye at birth is about 70% that of its final size.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The newborn eye is a short eye and the lens is nearly spherical. The fibers of the optic nerve are only partly developed and they do not become completely myelinated until about the tenth week, so vision is not perfect until then.

The normal infant avoids excessive light, closes the eyes if a flash-light is turned into them. As early as the sixth day, however, its eyes will follow a light in a room. It follows a moving object held close to the eyes, whether the object is bright or not, at eight weeks.

At 28 weeks the baby should recognize its image in a mirror. It has therefore learned the intricacies of binocular vision—the ability to focus an object with two eyes and to turn the object right side up in the brain. Of course, it hasn't mastered all the intricacies of this complicated function yet. At forty weeks it points at objects it wants.

The pupil is small at birth, largest in childhood and adolescence and gradually becomes smaller, until in age, pupils are quite small. The color of the iris of the eye is proportional to the pigment of the rest of the body. Babies are born with a lighter iris, in most instances, than what it will become as time goes on. Most babies are born with blue irises.

Refraction of the eyes of young babies is comparable to that of terrestrial animals in a state of nature; the eye is adapted for vision at long distances with but little capacity for focusing on near objects. The newborn eye is excessively short.

"We learn to see by seeing," according to an eminent oculist. The number of children in an average group who have 20/20 vision is 72 per cent at 6 years; 90 per cent at 17 years. It is difficult to determine refractive errors in childhood, because the oculist is testing a number of functions.

The power of attention which is itself complex is one of these.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

GOOD NEWS? Bad news?

Hallie's hand that held the receiver shook while she waited an age for the long distance connection.

Then she heard the familiar tones of Louise's voice.

"Hallie? How are you, darling?"

"Fine. Fine. How are you—and Toby?" What silly things people said on long distance calls.

"Surprised to hear from me? Thank goodness you've got a telephone."

"We had to get one. Eric has a new agent . . ."

"The hell with agents!" Louise exploded, giving way to rare blasphemy. "Hallie, have you heard from Win yet?"

"Yes—just a few minutes ago." Light was beginning to dawn on Hallie.

"Well?" Louise's voice sounded demanding, for all it was far away.

"He . . . he sent us a check for $300. I hadn't even finished reading the letter. It was from a sale of some property. What do you know about it?"

"This much—that Eric's not to get his hands on it. Hallie Singleton, you go straight down to the railroad station and get two fares to New York. And don't spend the money for anything else."

Something rarely sweet and delicious was flowing through Hallie's veins. "But Louise . . ." custom made her protest feebly.

"No 'buts' about it, Hallie. I practically broke up my happy home to get you back here. Now you come or I wash my hands of you forever."

"We . . . we'll come," Hallie said.

"That's the girl."

"But I'll have to tell Eric. What did you do?"

"You don't have to tell him anything. It's only noon in California, isn't it? You get tickets on the train that leaves at five."

"My job . . . it's my day off . . ."

"You're through with your job. Call 'em and say your grandfather left you a fortune. . . . Look, darling, I rang up Win. He did the best he could. Toby thinks I'm meddling, but we'll take care of you when you get here. My telephone bill is going up so I'll have to ring off now. We'll meet today's train when it gets in Thursday. Love and kisses." Louise rang off.

Hallie sat very still for a moment. Then, after three attempts she got Eric on the wire.

"Darling, tell Mr. Kebabian you're through!"

Eric said, "Speak louder. I can't understand you."

"I said—quit your job. Meet me at the railroad station at five o'clock. You won't have to come home. I'm going to the bank now and stop at the tearoom. Then I'll come back and pack. I'll take a cab to the station. The train leaves at five sharp."

Eric said, "Is there something the matter with you?"

"Not a thing. Everything's wonderful. We . . . I just got a check from home. We're going back to New York. Don't argue . . ."

"Argue!" he shouted into the telephone. "Yowee! I'll be right out."

"No," she said hastily. If Eric saw that check from Win . . .

"Then she remembered that it was made out to them jointly. Eric would have to sign it."

"All right," she said, "Hurry up. I'll meet you at the bank."

Eric was waiting for her outside the bank when she got off the bus. She looked much more determined than she felt. After all, the latest "new agent" Eric had met only a few days before had been enthusiastic. Eric might decide that they ought to stay in California.

She said, "Eric, you want to go back to New York, don't you?"

"And how!"

"All right. Then sign this check from Win. It's made out to both of us, but unless you agree to let me keep it and disburse it, I won't sign."

Eric kissed her, right there in plain sight of everybody on the sidewalk. What a goose he married!

They went back to New York in a day coach, and Hallie wore no orchids on the shoulder of her now shiny blue suit. There were no going away gifts, and no compartment. It was very different from the way it was when they left New York. But Hallie bloomed with delight, and Eric was gayer than he had been in many months.

They traveled by day coach and ate the simplest meals in the diner at night. Fruit was their breakfast, and sandwiches their lunch. They toasted their future in their evening coffee and played the game of make-believe Hallie thought they had both forgotten.

"We'll take back our apartment from the Fennells," Eric said. "Maybe get some new things. First we'll have to get some decent clothes."

"Not until fall, Eric. We'll have not quite two hundred dollars and that'll have to see us through until you or I get a job." Until that moment, Hallie hadn't realized that she was planning on getting a job.

"Maybe you won't have to. If you and Lou run up to Woburn for a month or so, I'll have one when you get back. You could take fir-teen or twenty and I could use the rest."

Hallie got a firmer clutch on the pocketbook in her lap. She wanted to go to Woburn with all her heart, but she wouldn't go until she knew they had more than the present sum in her purse.

Louise and Toby met them at the railroad station.

It was a heavenly day in April. Everything was bright and green in California, but to Hallie, Madison avenue was the loveliest sight she'd ever seen. A yellow taxicab looked as beautiful to her as all the flowers that bloomed in the west. She drank in the smell of gasoline fumes, the city smell. Oh, it was good!

"We've made some plans for you," Louise was saying, tactfully. "We knew that you wouldn't have any time to make arrangements, since you left so hastily. You don't want to go to a hotel, do you?"

Hallie said, "Why, if Eric . . ."

Louise hurried on, "Of course you don't!"

"But there isn't room in your apartment for two extra."

"Sue's studio," Louise explained. "Remember that eccentric old aunt of hers who lived up in Connecticut, near Greenwich?"

Hallie nodded, wondering what that had to do with her.

"Well, some eccentric aunt had a snook or stroke, or something, and Sue has been doing the devoted niece act, staying with her. Auntie is getting better now, but won't let Sue out of her sight. Not that Sue wants to get out. Auntie has lots and lots of money. They're going to Europe in the summer. Meanwhile, Sue's apartment isn't being used. It's yours."

Hallie should have thought: How wonderful! What she did think, wearily, was: How long?

Eric said, "Got a feeling my luck's changed. I'll bet I've got a job inside of a week."

"You've got one," Louise said brightly. "Two. Hasn't he, Toby?"

Toby favored his wife with one of those "couldn't-you-wait-until-later" looks and grunted, "Sure—if he wants them."

Eric said gleefully, "See? I told you, honey, there'd be something worth getting in New York."

Toby cleared his throat and said, "Let's change around here since you left. Want you to look at this new place going up on Fifty-Seventh."

He kept up a line of chatter all the way to the apartment that had once been the newly-wedded Adames'. Toby wasn't going to spoil that homecoming with talk of the jobs. Which were not, as Eric predicted, "something worth getting." Unless he could be made to look at them that way.

DID WE DO IT?

ONE of the latest outgivings of Herr Goebbels, Nazi propaganda chief, is a tirade of hate against America and Britain for "forcing Germany to take up arms against Russia."

We Americans must dumbly admit that "we don't get it." We have been thinking, in our simple-minded way, that attacking Russia with everything he had was Hitler's own idea. We were especially convinced that he himself planned the job, because he had just made a treaty of everlasting friendship with Russia. Such Nazi pledges are usually fatal to the other party.

Just the same, we may feel complimented. If we really did, by wishful but unconscious thought waves, move Hitler to turn eastward against Russia, it was a good psychic job. For Hitler's eastern army now seems to be wearing itself out as Napoleon's did, and both the Reds and the Democracies may profit by it.

TRUCKING UP PIKE'S PEAK

A TRACTOR truck pulling a fully loaded, van-type trailer has recently climbed Pike's Peak. It made every hairpin turn, rolled up every grade and managed every switch-back without difficulty. The run from Cascades at the entrance of Pike's Peak Park to Summit House, 20.5 miles, was made in two hours and 10 minutes.

The trailer is a show-room which demonstrates refrigeration equipment at fairs and farmers' meetings. It bore across its front the historic sign, "Pike's Peak or Bust". But the covered wagons which used to bear that motto meant only to get as far west as Pike's peak, and had no thought of climbing the mountain.

What with stores and theatres a wheel, libraries, churches and homes in trailers, sometimes it strikes one as surprising to see people digging down into the earth to build foundations for stable homes in settled locations. Stability and free movement both, however, seem needed in this modern world.

NO MORE FIRE BELLS

IT would grieve the spirit of Edgar Allan Poe, who rang all possible changes on bells, to learn of the decision of the OPM at Washington to take the bells off the fire engines. This is done, like so many other things, to save material for national defense.

We must be defended against fire, to be sure, but the experts say the ordinary siren is adequate for the job. "Fire engines will be able to get to fires just as fast," we are told, "and will be able to fight the fires just as efficiently after they get there. The chief difference is that they

WASHINGTON—An armored tank carried under an airplane as an eagle carries its prey left the realm of fancy and became stark reality when the Germans produced this fearful novelty in the invasion of Crete. Now it is about to become a reality in the United States.

In Brooklyn, New York, a mechanism is being built for the "hook-on" and "release" whereby a tank is attached under the fuselage of the plane, and released as the plane lands.

The tank's crew of three rides in the tank as it is borne aloft, and when the plane lands, the tank driver operates the release mechanism. Free of the plane, the tank (light type of 10½ tons) operates independently, with a cruising radius of 300 miles.

This mechanism is being developed by the armored Tank Corporation of New York. It is designed to be attached to a certain type of large transport plane already in production.

NYA FIGHT

Real inside behind that General Accounting Office blast against the National Youth Administration was an internal row between the investigating and accounting division of the GAO.

The gum-shoers are under fire as inefficient and high-handed, so to make a splash and divert criticism from themselves they heaved a load of brickbats at NYA, charging it with balking Army recruiting. The real facts are that NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams was bitterly assailed by the leftist National Youth Congress because he cooperated with the Army and Navy to encourage NYA students to enlist in the armed forces.

Another inside detail of the hostile report was that it was issued without having been read by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, who is an old friend of Williams and a strong NYA supporter when he was a congressman from North Carolina.

NOTE:—Insiders predict an early consolidation of NYA and CCC under a single head. Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, titular boss of the two agencies, favors this move.

CHINA WANTS BOMBERS

Not many people know it, but the Chinese Government is having such a tough time getting war materials from the U.S.A. that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has retained the famous ex-brain truster Tom Corcoran to do a little lobbying with the White House.

What Chiang Kai-shek especially wants is long range bombers. His idea is that China cannot remain on the defensive indefinitely, and he proposes sending flying fortresses over Tokyo and Osaka, whose paper and bamboo houses would go up in smoke if subjected to bombing raids. Chiang Kai-shek claims that this type of offensive would make the Japanese think twice regarding their revived plans to drive into Thailand toward Singapore.

However, there is only one place where China can get the bombers, and so far not even Tom Corcoran, who once sat at the

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE... Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to the first day of Pumpkin Show, a beautiful morning that must have been made to order of the show directors. Soon downtown where everything was set for the noonday starting signal. At the exhibit in front of the plant did see two real freaks. One a double apple on one stem, a Baldwin. Ever hear of such a thing? I didn't. It was raised by John May out on Ringgold Pike. And George Deffenbaugh, of north of the ville, offered a big double watermelon. Never saw the like of that before either.

Much interested by that mechanical elephant walking the streets. Examined its workings carefully, but too many gadgets there for me to understand. Wonder how many persons know that Circleville has an elephant distinction. It was long ago when an elephant trainer with a circus playing here drank not wisely, but too well and was discharged. So, the trainer took his big charge and disappeared. For three days a great hunt was on and then the elephant was found in a barn situated where the post-office now stands.

There goes Bob Colville into whose hands every single Pumpkin Show string runs. If anything happened to Bob I doubt seriously that this event ever would get under way. Everyone runs to him to get things done, and he does. My hat is off to him, really.

If you missed the American Legion Club's contest program in West Main Street you missed several good laughs. One of the contests is Coca Cola drinking. Men volunteered for that one, figuring that the downing of Frank Lynch's product would be pleasant and might easily be profitable. Then the bottles were handed to the contestants and each bottle was equipped with a nipple. So, the drinking was not so easy, but it was a lot of fun for the spectators.

Was thrilled by the beauty parade. We certainly raise something besides top farm produce in these parts. Never saw a prettier group of girls. Certainly each community entered in the contest should be mighty proud. And sincere congratulations to Miss New Holland, the winner.

Helped at the square dance in the evening. Never would be able to learn the square dance, but certainly enjoy seeing it done. And so do several thousand other folk, for the vicinity of the platform was jammed all evening. Invited Lazy Jim Day, who was appearing at the Grand, to come over and call one dance which he did, giving the folk a big thrill. Lazy Jim, of course, is the radio star heard so frequently over WLW.

Home at one in the morning. Hesitated momentarily at the kitchen doorway with the ice box in full view, but finally decided that I needed sleep and rest more than food, so did turn upstairs and to the bed where I promptly fell into sleep.

When a Baby Begins to See Things Clearly

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The newborn baby has an eye that is completely differentiated into its various tissues and structures at birth, but it doesn't know how to use them. The size of the eye at birth is about 70% that of its final size.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The newborn eye is a short eye and the lens is nearly spherical. The fibers of the optic nerve are only partly developed and they do not become completely myelinated until about the tenth week, so vision is not perfect until then.

The normal infant avoids excessive light, closes the eyes if a flash-light is turned into them. As early as the sixth day, however, its eyes will follow a light in a room. It follows a moving object held close to the eyes, whether the object is bright or not, at eight weeks.

At 28 weeks the baby should recognize its image in a mirror. It has therefore learned the intricacies of binocular vision—the ability to focus an object with two eyes and to turn the object right side up in the brain. Of course, it hasn't mastered all the intricacies of this complicated function yet. At forty weeks it points at objects it wants.

The pupil is small at birth, largest in childhood and adolescence and gradually becomes smaller, until in age, pupils are quite small. The color of the iris of the eye is proportional to the pigment of the rest of the body. Babies are born with a lighter iris, in most instances, than what it will become as time goes on. Most babies are born with blue irises.

Refraction of the eyes of young babies is comparable to that of terrestrial animals in a state of nature; the eye is adapted for vision at long distances with but little capacity for focusing of near objects. The newborn eye is excessively short.

"We learn to see by seeing," according to an eminent oculist. The number of children in an average group who have 20/20 vision is 72 per cent at 6 years; 90 per cent at 17 years. It is difficult to determine refractive errors in childhood, because the oculist is testing a number of functions.

The power of attention which is itself complex is one of these.

GOOD NEWS? Bad news?

Hallie's hand that held the receiver shook while she waited an age for the long distance connection.

Then she heard the familiar tones of Louise's voice.

"Hallie? How are you, darling?"

"Fine. Fine. How are you—and Toby?" What silly things people said on long distance calls.

"Surprised to hear from me? Thank goodness you've got a telephone."

"We had to get one. Eric has a new agent . . ."

"The hell with agents!" Louise exploded, giving way to rare blasphemy. "Hallie, have you heard from Win yet?"

"Yes—just a few minutes ago." Light was beginning to dawn on Hallie.

"Well?" Louise's voice sounded demanding, for all it was far away.

"He . . . he sent us a check for $300. I hadn't even finished reading the letter. It was from a sale of some property. What do you know about it?"

"This much—that Eric's not to get his hands on it. Hallie Singleton, you go straight down to the railroad station and get two fares to New York. And don't spend the money for anything else."

Something rarely sweet and delicious was flowing through Hallie's veins. "But Louise . . ." custom made her protest feebly.

"No 'buts' about it, Hallie. I practically broke up my happy home to get you back here. Now you come or I wash my hands of you forever."

"We . . . we'll come," Hallie said.

"That's the girl."

"But I'll have to tell Eric. What did you do?"

"You don't have to tell him anything. It's only noon in California, isn't it? Well, you get tickets on the train that leaves at five."

"My job . . . it's my day off . . ."

"You're through with your job. Call 'em and say your grandfather left you a fortune. . . . Look, darling, I rang up Win. He did the best he could. There should be assurance of surprising rewards of an enduring nature. But it will take much hard work, and much circumspect readiness against opposition from high places.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of eventful and memorable experiences and adventures, in both business and private affairs. Big deals of momentous nature may be at hand for development along novel, original, even revolutionary lines, with the public welfare, political or financial rewards at issue.

All calls for much prudence, vigilance and keen grasp of peculiar circumstances to be cleverly disposed of. The result may be a surprising turn of fortune with an enduring and established security for the future.

A child born on this day should be bounteously endowed with attributes and talents for extraordinary success in life, with romance and adventures of thrilling significance. Business as well as private affiliations and exploits will be dramatic.

Just in case you think soup-making takes a lot of time and effort, you should glance at the interesting group of Jiffy Soups in the latest Cookbooklet, "250 Delicious Soups," sixth in the series being offered to readers of The Herald.

Canned soups form the basis for most of these easy-to-make recipes and the results are delightful. If you like your soups to show evidence of ingenuity when you serve them at the table, try combining two prepared soups to lend a new zest to your regular meal planning routine.

For instance, with a can of Cream of Mushroom soup, there are possibilities of several delicious varieties when combined with another prepared soup. Add a can of Chicken soup to Cream of Mushroom and you have a tasty, easily prepared soup dish. Or, simmer one-half cup whole kernel corn in two tablespoons of butter for five minutes; add a can of Cream of Mushroom soup and serve garnished with chopped pimiento. Here's another tempter everyone will like. To a can of Cream of Mushroom soup add a can of Pea soup and garnish with chopped mint leaves. For lobster supreme, use a can of Asparagus soup with a can of Cream of Mushroom and shredded lobster meat. Add three tablespoons of sherry for a savory touch.

For quick Tuna Bisque—one can of Pea soup, 2 cups rich milk or cream and 1 can tuna, shredded. Hunter's special is made with one can condensed Tomato soup, 1 can condensed Scotch broth and 2 cans water. Heat to boiling and simmer 4 or 5 minutes.

There are many other quick

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as lively as a youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Mackey Travels; Ohio Boys Tangle Saturday

By John Barrington

COLUMBUS, Oct. 9—Scrambled scribbles from the sports savor . . . "Fritz" Mackey, Ohio state assistant coach, had never been to the West Coast until this fall . . . Then inside of ten days Mackey made two trips to the Pacific, once to scout Southern California against Oregon State and a week later in company with the Buckeye delegation that thumped U.S.C. 33 to 0 . . . Traveling by plane for the most part, Mackey figures he covered about 12,000 miles during that period.

Saturday's Dayton-Tennessee clash brings two former New Philadelphia athletic luminaries together as opponents. . . Jack Castagnola has scored 24 points to date as a sophomore halfback at Dayton, and Leonard Simonetti is a star tackle for the Vols. . . Cincinnati University will watch the Flyer-Tennessee clash with unusual interest since the Bearcats meet both teams later in the season.

400,000 Playing

John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner, estimates that 400,000 boys are playing high school and college football in the nation this fall. . . In 24 years of coaching Francis Schmidt, former Ohio State mentor, has won more games than his new Idaho charges have won in 47 seasons of football. . . The Red Cross announces it has purchased 400,000 pieces of athletic equipment for the army in a million dollar recreation program.

When Freddie Timmons, dubbed "Automatic" by his Cincinnati mates, missed the extra point that would have given the Bearcats a tie rather than a 14-13 defeat at the hands of Boston University last week, it was only the law of averages catching up with him. . . The place-kicking star had previously made eight consecutive conversions. . . Coach Tom Davies of Western Reserve plans to start six sophomores against Akron tomorrow night.

Steuvenville, Canton, Akron and Youngstown are Ohio cities interested in formation of an Ohio-Pennsylvania pro football league next year. . . Pennsylvania cities considered in present plans are Erie, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Harrisburg. . . Steuvenville, once a pro stronghold, has revived the game this year with Jack Torrance, former National league star and shot putter extra-ordinary, as coach.

Age limit differences are impairing high school relationships between Ohio and Pennsylvania. . . The Buckeye state allows competition until the age of 20, while the neighboring state draws the line at 19. . . Denison University has three regulars who never played high school ball. . . One of them, Halfback Urb Hubona, is an outstanding candidate for all-Ohio Conference honors. . . The others are Jack Riley, Canton blocking back, and Center Del Johnson, from Steuvenville.

SOLDIERS CHEER LOUIS AS CHAMP PUTS ON SHOW

SAVANNA, Ill., Oct. 9—Hailed as a conquering hero, Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis prepared to put on the gloves for his second Army camp exhibition today, this time at the Savanna ordnance depot.

Louis opened his tour of army camps at Camp Grant yesterday, where he was given a tremendous reception by 10,000 soldiers in Bell Bowl, a natural amphitheatre. The champion stepped three fast rounds with Sillman Martin, Chicago heavyweight, and landed a flock of solid punches in his attempt to give the army men a good show.

The Bomber, in fine spirit, even essayed a bit of humor. Looking over the huge khaki-clad crowd, he divided his dead pan into what was almost a grin, and cracked: "Mike Jacobs would never stand for this. Ten thousand people and no gate receipts! That would break Mr. Jacobs' heart."

Other army posts to be visited by Louis on the tour are Rantoul Field, Scott Field and Fort Sheridan in Illinois, and Fort Custer and Selfridge Field, in Michigan.

CUBS GIVE ROOT WALKING PAPERS AFTER LONG JOB

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—The housecleaning started this year by Manager Jimmy Wilson and General Manager Jib Gallagher of the Chicago Cubs was another step along today following the unconditional release of 42-year-old Charley Root, Bruin pitching fixture for 16 years.

Along the north side, the big question "Who's next?" That some other Cubs will be placed on the block or released during the hot stove days was doubted by no one. Wilson summed up the situation with the succinct observation that "there is no one we can't spare in our efforts to rebuild."

The weeding out process began with the retirement of Dizzy Dean last spring, and during the season players traded away included Second Baseman Billy Herman, Pitcher Larry French and Outfielder Augie Gahan, all of whom went to the Dodgers.

Root accepted the inevitable philosophically, saying his had been a long and happy tenure which had to end sometime. He is believed in line for a coaching job next year with the Los Angeles Angels, a Cub farm, and said he would confer on the west coast next week with Dave Fleming, Angel president.

ROY BINION'S HEREFORD STEER ADJUDGED CHAMPION OF SHOW.

TWO BOYS AND GIRL WIN TRIP TO EXPOSITION

State University Herdsman Praises Steer Selected As Outstanding

STOCK TO BE AUCTIONED

Lois Defenbaugh, Donald Hoover Gain Honors With Entries

Happiest boy in Pickaway County, Thursday, is Roy Binion, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Binion, Lockbourne RFD, because his 1,050 pound Hereford steer is the Grand Champion in the Baby Beef Club Show.

J. B. McCorkle, herdsman for Ohio State University and judge of the Baby Beef Show, selected Roy's steer from a list of nearly 50 animals entered in the competition Wednesday afternoon. The 17-month-old animal was of almost perfect type, the judge said. The youth, an eighth grader at Duvall School, was presented the Circleville Herald Trophy by F. K. Blair, county agent, immediately after his steer had been selected the best of three breed: Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn. As a special award, he will be one of the three winners sent to the International Livestock Show in Chicago. Another of his calves placed third in the Shorthorn class.

Lois Defenbaugh, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Defenbaugh of Salt Creek Township, is possessor of the champion Aberdeen Angus in the show. Her calf was selected from a group of 14, another calf entered by her taking second place.

Shorthorn winner was Donald Hoover, Ashville, whose calf was selected from a list of 16 entries. Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hoover.

Three Go To Chicago
All three winners will be sent to the International Livestock Show in Chicago through the support of the John W. ## EMBRACE ENDS IN SHOOTING OF NEW YORK MAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Taking her boy friend, Gus Scaletta, 27, into her arms for a farewell kiss—after he told her he was "through with her" after a five-year engagement—24-year-old Mary Citorino today emptied a pistol into him while they stood in close embrace in the hall of her Brooklyn home.

Scaletta, a welder in the Brooklyn navy yard, fell to the floor with two bullet wounds in the abdomen and one in the right arm. A fourth shot went wild. Police, who responded to an alarm by passersby who heard the shooting, rushed the youth to the hospital and arrested the girl on a felonious assault charge.

At King's County Hospital, doctors said the youth was dying. Police quoted Mary as saying that Scaletta had taken his ring back four months ago, and that early today, after returning from a date at the movies, he told her that he was in love with another girl, and that this was the "last time" he was going to call.

Mary, who will be arraigned in felony court later today, said that she had once found in the street, hidden in the hall, and that after he told her he was going to leave, she embraced him, and then opened fire. When police arrived, they found her sobbing and crying with Scaletta's head propped up on her knees.

"I wasted six years of my life with him," William R. Foley of the district attorney's office quoted her as saying. "He said he did not love me any more. He said he was through with me, and that he was going to disgrace me. Then I shot him."

right hand of the President, has been able to pry them loose. The man who has blocked the bombers happens to be Harry Hopkins, one time partner and mentor of Corcoran.

Hopkins argues that big bombers should go to Britain and Russia first. This has focused attention upon a wide rift among Roosevelt advisers over help to China or appeasing Japan.

So far Roosevelt has followed a middle course by continuing a certain amount of aid to China but still flirting with Japan—even though Japan recently reaffirmed her partnership in the Axis.

LINDBERGH'S HOME

If you will turn to page 1596 of the current (1940-41) issue of WHO'S WHO, you will find a very illuminating commentary on Charles A. Lindbergh.

As a leading champion of isolationism, the principal tenet of the ex-air hero is love of the U. S. A. America First is the symbol and dogma of his political credo. In his recent Fort Wayne, Ind., speech he declared, "I have no motive in mind other than the welfare of my country and my civilization." But on page 1596 of WHO'S WHO Lindbergh's self-penned biography tells a different story.

This is what he says: "Home, Illiee Island, Penvenan, France. Illiee Island is in Nazi-occupied France. Nearby is an island belonging to Dr. Alexis Carrel, with whom Lindbergh collaborated in making their so-called mechanical heart. Carrel is now in occupied France and is working in cooperation with the Petain government which is playing hand-in-glove with the Nazis."

Lindbergh has not been abroad since he returned in 1939. Why he still gives the little island in Nazi-controlled France as his "home" even at this late date is not explained in the biography, in which he carefully lists all his achievements and decorations—except the one presented him by Hitler.

NOTE:—Several days prior to Lindbergh's Fort Wayne speech, Berlin shortwave broadcasts to the U. S. were devoted almost entirely to attacks on Roosevelt as a dictator, and charges that free speech and free press were disappearing in this country. Theme of Lindbergh's speech was that the President was assuming dictatorial powers and was secretly planning to call off the 1942 elections.

This, they felt, would be a national disaster. The package contained a pair of suspenders. Shortly afterwards, Henderson took occasion to wear the suspenders at a ceremony in his home town, Millville, New Jersey, where he dedicated a new airport. He sent a picture of himself, wearing suspenders, to the Chicago firm, and thanked them for saving his pants.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

When the OPM was reorganized and the new super SPAB set up to lay down defense production policies, Washington insiders wondered how William Knudsen, OPM Director General, would take the change. The big, patriotic Danish-born former auto mogul has taken it by working harder and more zealously than ever before. When particularly tough problems come before SPAB, of which he is a member, Knudsen invariably volunteers to handle them. "I've got broad shoulders," he grins. "I can take a lot of squawking."

HELEN MORGAN, FAMED SINGER, IS DEAD AT 37

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Members of her family announced today that public funeral services will be held Saturday for Helen Morgan, the girl who sang with a sob in her throat and for two decades was America's leading torch singer.

The services are expected to be held in a chapel at suburban La Grange, and will be open to the public. Exact time of the services and the burial place were expected to be announced later today.

Miss Morgan, who was 37 years old, died last night in Henrotin Hospital, where she was operated on September 25 for a liver ailment which had plagued her since childhood. She was given 14 blood transfusions—the last yesterday afternoon—as doctors battled to rally her waning strength.

At her bedside when she died were her husband, Lloyd Johnson, a Los Angeles automobile dealer, and her mother, Mrs. Lulu Morgan of High Falls, N. Y.

Although she was a favorite of stage, screen and radio and attained wide popularity as a singer of torch songs in night clubs where she was wont to perch on piano tops, Miss Morgan probably will be best remembered for her portrayal of the mulatto girl, "Julie," in Florenz Ziegfeld's production of "Show Boat." She later appeared in the same role on the screen.

One of Miss Morgan's first successful stage appearances was in Ziegfeld's "Sally." From there she went onto fame in night clubs, and later tramped with George White's "Scandals." Among her movies were "Applause," "Roadhouse Nights," "Sweet Music," and "Frankie and Johnnie."

Miss Morgan was born in Danville, Ill.

ROY BINION'S HEREFORD STEER ADJUDGED CHAMPION OF SHOW.

TWO BOYS AND GIRL WIN TRIP TO EXPOSITION

State University Herdsman Praises Steer Selected As Outstanding

STOCK TO BE AUCTIONED

Lois Defenbaugh, Donald Hoover Gain Honors With Entries

Happiest boy in Pickaway County, Thursday, is Roy Binion, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Binion, Lockbourne RFD, because his 1,050 pound Hereford steer is the Grand Champion in the Baby Beef Club Show.

J. B. McCorkle, herdsman for Ohio State University and judge of the Baby Beef Show, selected Roy's steer from a list of nearly 50 animals entered in the competition Wednesday afternoon. The 17-month-old animal was of almost perfect type, the judge said. The youth, an eighth grader at Duvall School, was presented the Circleville Herald Trophy by F. K. Blair, county agent, immediately after his steer had been selected the best of three bred: Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn. As a special award, he will be one of the three winners sent to the International Livestock Show in Chicago. Another of his calves placed third in the Shorthorn class.

Lois Defenbaugh, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Defenbaugh of Saltcreek Township, is possessor of the champion Aberdeen Angus in the show. Her calf was selected from a group of 14, another calf entered by her taking second place.

Shorthorn winner was Donald Hoover, Ashville, whose calf was selected from a list of 16 entries. Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hoover.

Three Go To Chicago
All three winners will be sent to the International Livestock Show in Chicago through the support of the John W. Eshelman and Sons Company, the Ralston Purina Company and the Circleville Lumber Company. The winning calves will be held at the livestock tent on Pickaway Street and will be sold at auction during the livestock sale Friday evening.

EMBRACE ENDS IN SHOOTING OF NEW YORK MAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Taking her boy friend, Gus Scaletta, 27, into her arms for a farewell kiss—after he told her he was "through with her" after a five-year engagement—24-year-old Mary Citorino today emptied a pistol into him while they stood in close embrace in the hall of her Brooklyn home.

Scaletta, a welder in the Brooklyn navy yard, fell to the floor with two bullet wounds in the abdomen and one in the right arm. A fourth shot went wild. Police, who responded to an alarm by passersby who heard the shooting, rushed the youth to the hospital and arrested the girl on a felonious assault charge.

At King's County Hospital, doctors said the youth was dying. Police quoted Mary as saying that Scaletta had taken his ring back four months ago, and that early today, after returning from a date at the movies, he told her that he was in love with another girl, and that this was the "last time" he was going to call.

Mary, who will be arraigned in felony court later today, said that she had a gun, which she said she had once found in the street, hidden in the hall, and that after he told her he was going to leave, she embraced him, and then opened fire. When police arrived, they found her sobbing and crying with Scaletta's head propped up on her knees.

"I wasted six years of my life with him," William R. Foley of the district attorney's office quoted her as saying. "He said he did not love me any more. He said he was through with me, and that he was going to disgrace me. Then I shot him."

Circleville High School band and members of Scoto Commandery Knights Templars had excellent roles in the gigantic Knights Templar parade Wednesday in Columbus. Both marching units were well applauded as they passed various points in the marching course.

The Grand Commandery was to elect officers Thursday.

Highlight of the conclave was the parade of 5,000 knights in full regalia. Eleven divisions and 20 bands from Masonic units and Ohio schools were in the parade.

right hand of the President, has been able to pry them loose. The man who has blocked the bombers happens to be Harry Hopkins, one time partner and mentor of Corcoran.

Hopkins argues that big bombers should go to Britain and Russia first. This has focused attention upon a wide rift among Roosevelt advisers over help to China or appeasing Japan.

So far Roosevelt has followed a middle course by continuing a certain amount of aid to China but still flirting with Japan—even though Japan recently reaffirmed her partnership in the Axis.

LINDBERGH'S HOME

If you will turn to page 1596 of the current (1940-41) issue of WHO'S WHO, you will find a very illuminating commentary on Charles A. Lindbergh.

As a leading champion of isolationism, the principal tenant of the ex-air hero is love of the U. S. A. America First is the symbol and dogma of his political credo. In his recent Fort Wayne, Ind., speech he declared, "I have no motive in mind other than the welfare of my country and my civilization." But on page 1596 of WHO'S WHO Lindbergh's self-penned biography tells a different story.

This is what he says: "Home, Illice Island, Penvenan, France. Illice Island is in Nazi-occupied France. Nearby is an island belonging to Dr. Alexis Carrel, with whom Lindbergh collaborated in making their so-called mechanical heart. Carrel is now in occupied France and is working in cooperation with the Petain government which is playing hand-in-glove with the Nazis.

Lindbergh has not been abroad since he returned in 1939. Why he still gives the little island in Nazi-controlled France as his "home" even at this late date is not explained in the biography, in which he carefully lists all his achievements and decorations—except the one presented him by Hitler.

NOTE:—Several days prior to Lindbergh's Fort Wayne speech, Berlin shortwave broadcasts to the U. S. were devoted almost entirely to attacks on Roosevelt as a dictator, and charges that free speech and free press were disappearing in this country. Theme of Lindbergh's speech was that the President was assuming dictatorial powers and was secretly planning to call off the 1942 elections.

LEON HENDERSON'S PANTS

A Chicago suspender firm sent Leon Henderson, Price Administrator, a letter and a package. The letter said they had seen a picture of him which revealed that he was in danger of losing his trousers.

This, they felt, would be a national disaster. The package contained a pair of suspenders. Shortly afterwards, Henderson took occasion to wear the suspenders at a ceremony in his home town, Millville, New Jersey, where he dedicated a new airport. He sent a picture of himself, wearing suspenders, to the Chicago firm, and thanked them for saving his pants.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

When the OPM was reorganized and the new super SPAB set up to lay down defense production policies, Washington insiders wondered how William Knudsen, OPM Director General, would take the change. The big, patriotic Danish-born former auto mogul has taken it by working harder and more zealously than ever before. When particularly tough problems come before SPAB, of which he is a member, Knudsen invariably volunteers to handle them. "I've got broad shoulders," he grins. "I can take a lot of squawking" . . . John E. Kennedy, former congressional secretary, is organizing "Wheeler for EX-Senator Clubs" in the Montana State University, also in Montana State College and Montana School of Mines.

As a leading champion of isolationism, the principal tenant of the ex-air hero is love of the U. S. A. America First is the symbol and dogma of his political credo. In his recent Fort Wayne, Ind., speech he declared, "I have no motive in mind other than the welfare of my country and my civilization." ## HELEN MORGAN, FAMED SINGER, IS DEAD AT 37

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Members of her family announced today that public funeral services will be held Saturday for Helen Morgan, the girl who sang with a sob in her throat and for two decades was America's leading torch singer.

The services are expected to be held in a chapel at suburban La Grange, and will be open to the public. Exact time of the services and the burial place were expected to be announced later today.

Miss Morgan, who was 37 years old, died last night in Henrotin Hospital, where she was operated on September 25 for a liver ailment which had plagued her since childhood. She was given 14 blood transfusions—the last yesterday afternoon—as doctors bat-led to rally her waning strength. At her bedside when she died were her husband, Lloyd Johnson, a Los Angeles automobile dealer, and her mother, Mrs. Lulu Morgan of High Falls, N. Y.

Although she was a favorite of stage, screen and radio and attained wide popularity as a singer of torch songs in night clubs where she was wont to perch on piano tops, Miss Morgan probably will be best remembered for her portrayal of the mulatto girl, "Julie," in Florenz Ziegfeld's production of "Show Boat." She later appeared in the same role on the screen. One of Miss Morgan's first successful stage appearances was in Ziegfeld's "Sally." From there she went onto fame in night clubs, and later trouped with George White's "Scandals." Among her movies were "Applause," "Roadhouse Nights," "Sweet Music," and "Frankie and Johnnie." Miss Morgan was born in Danville, Ill.
